To the Lambton College Class of 2026:

It is my honour to be addressing you on this monumental day: your Convocation.

This day is a celebration of years of hard work and dedication. This day represents the late nights, the early mornings, and all the effort it took to get here. This day is every win, every setback, and every time you pushed through and tried again.

And that is all well worth celebrating.

But when I was speaking to one of this year's graduates, I asked if he was feeling excited about Convocation. He quite plainly told me no. Instead, he was nervous about this stage of his life coming to an end. He was going from knowing where he was supposed to be every day and knowing who he would see and how it would go, for the most part, to not knowing what's in store for him.

That's a piece that those of us who aren't sitting in your seats today can forget. You've spent years working towards this very day, towards your degree, diploma, or certificate, and everything it means for you. What's waiting for you on the other side of this stage is the rest of your life. There's real excitement in that, but there are also unknowns. And there might be feelings other than jubilation.

I try not to go heavy on the lessons as I address our graduates. I figure by this day, you've already learned your fair share from Lambton College, and if there's any wisdom left for you to absorb, I'll leave it to the Faculty Convocation speakers to impart it. You're used to it from them and I would certainly say they're the experts.

But this year, if you'll indulge me, I've got one piece of advice I'd like to share.

It isn't just new graduates who are grappling with unknowns and wondering what might be coming around the corner. A lot of us in different stages of life and circumstances are dealing with uncertainty right now for a huge range of reasons. And in uncertain times, I can tell you, we all look for what we know is certain.

Lambton College graduates, that is you.

As college graduates, you are the ones who will do the jobs that form the backbone of our communities. The roles you take on will shape our health, our safety, our prosperity, even our happiness. You will be on the front lines changing outcomes in ways big and small on most days of your careers. I have no doubt about that.

Because I know this class. I've seen you. In the good times, I've seen you uplift each other and make bright days better. And in the hardest of times, I saw you turn to each other with the kind of care and support that proved you have the skills and the heart needed to protect the lives we live and the people we love in Sarnia-Lambton and beyond.

In times of uncertainty, that is, more than anything, what we are all looking for. And I can't wait for it to be you who our communities find. In our industries, keeping this city powered. In our businesses, coming up with new solutions. In our hospitals and clinics, providing care and compassion. In our homes, in our schools, in our streets, on our best days, and in our hardest moments, I can't wait for it to be you.

We tend to talk about hope as though it's some far-off concept, or something reserved for the future.

My hope is not reserved for the future. My hope is right now. It's right here.

It's you.

To the Lambton College Class of 2026:

Thank you.
